

Visit To The Shropshire Star

TEAM - 'Together Everyone Achieves More'

On Wednesday 8th June seven year five children went to the Shropshire Star in Ketley. This visit was to help inspire them with their writing.

They met with Mark Drew, Deputy Editor of the newspaper. He showed them round the offices and press room.

Interesting Facts.

They make 1 million newspapers a week.

The first Shropshire Star newspaper was made in 1965.

It takes 3 minutes for the newspaper to come of the press to getting into the van for distributing.

The Shropshire Star was the first newspaper in England to be in colour.

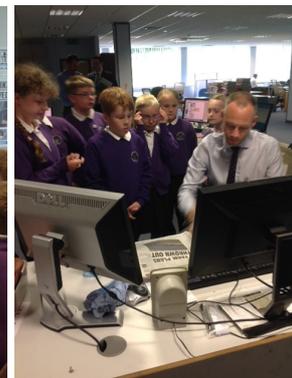

The paper relies on the money from adverts to keep it running.

The Shropshire Star also has a website and this is updated regularly.

Tyler Shenton said that visiting the Shropshire Star has inspired him to keep his writing neat and he that would really be interested in becoming a reporter after speaking to Mark.

Editing the paper

Megan Bunce said “ Going to the newspaper has inspired me to think more about the quality of my work and not about how much I write. I understand people will read an article if it is more interesting.”

Look in tonight's Shropshire Star as there may be an article about the visit.
